the family of the deceased member. This death may be due to illness, old age, heart attack, cancer, TB, AIDs, kidney failure etc. All assistance is linked to membership. As a Security Scheme, it is essential that the members and their families are assured that the 'Security is in the true sense of the word and is provided when most needed. That naturally is when the earning member of the family is no more, and the family is put to hardship, distress and likely poverty. Hence, if once a farmer was a member of this Scheme, his/her family of dependent members shall continue to get all presently eligible benefits even if the farmer member is no more, thus providing the security blanket for education and marriage for the members of the family.

4. The Principal Secretary/Commissioner of Land Reforms has, therefore, requested that, as per the announcement made by the Hon'ble Minister for Revenue in the Budget Session 2012-2013 necessary orders may be passed to extend the benefit to the children even after the death of their parent, i.e., the farmer member under the scheme and accordingly, the District Collector would also be requested to extend the benefits of education and marriage to the children of the deceased farmer member.
